THE CLUB

A house with a history

Built for Lord Arthur Russell and designed by T. H. Wyatt, 2 Audley Square hosted well-known salons long before it became the University Women's Club in 1921. Many of its original features remain today, from the wood-panelled Library to the light-filled Drawing Room and secluded terrace garden.

Where to meet

The Library offers a classic backdrop for meetings and conferences, with full AV and WiFi for presentations and video conferencing

Where to dine

From intimate dinners to larger celebrations, our event rooms provide a timeless setting for a memorable occasion.

Where to celebrate

The Drawing Room, Library and terrace garden combine to create a unique and welcoming atmosphere for your guests
